Your Impact 2021

Finding our North Star

Dear Friend,

We can't thank you enough for your support in 2021. The past two years have been unpredictable, but one constant is how you show up for survivors time and again through your financial support, volunteer hours and the steady flow of items coming through our doors. You're incredible.

As you know – and can see by the numbers – our capacity has been tested. We stretched it in response to the surge in need, and now we're doing the hard work of digging into our mission. We want to sharpen our focus on the survivors who need us and not simply manage numbers.

Our vision is changing lives and breaking cycles of abuse. Coburn Place fills a critical need for longer-term housing and wraparound support for survivors of intimate partner violence. Now, as things settle down in the world, we want to deepen that impact.

We are being intentional about how we can most effectively support survivors and their children in a meaningful way and then driving all our efforts toward that North Star.

Together, we have brought hope, safety and empowerment to hundreds of families, and that will not change.

Thank you for your partnership in 2022 as we set our course toward a more innovative Coburn Place.

Rachel Scott

"Knowing that I'm safe inside the building helps me. And my kids being comfortable here has taken off a lot of stress because they're much happier."

"Apartment 308. It makes me emotional because that was a pivotal change ... We loved it there. I was safe. I was in a nice apartment ... It lets you know there's a whole better world."

"I contribute both financially and with my time at Coburn Place because I know the value of a supportive system that, in many cases, is taken away from the survivor. And here's a place where they can rebuild those pathways of support."
